RECORDS MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS FOR TODAY'S LAW ENFORCEMENT ORGANIZATIONS

In the 21st century local and federal law enforcement departments should be utilizing the capabilities of modern technology to streamline their resources and intelligence gathering efforts, yet many departments are struggling on antiquated systems. The Mark43 Record Management System (RMS) allows departments to bridge the gap between their outdated legacy systems and a contemporary cloud-based solution that provides the ability to easily create reports and analyze data in a user-friendly web based portal. Built specifically as a modern system for law enforcement, it was created with the objective of reducing the workload on the user and eliminating the inefficiencies of outdated tools, while also allowing for detailed data collection and crime analysis. This lets the user easily search through and establish connections between reports and cases, pieces of evidence, persons, and countless other variables that are involved in law enforcement caseloads.

"Mark43 has fully supported our team during the Boston Police Department implementation and has worked with us and the department to find the best possible solution for any problems we have faced."

- Carlos Cannon, Business Analyst, Praescient Analytics

Praescient Analytics joins forces with Mark43 to support law enforcement organizations through their RMS transitions and beyond. We serve Mark43 as their trusted services partner, providing integral engineering and analytics support to our law enforcement partners.

Although unified in their crime-fighting efforts, law enforcement organizations have their own procedures and practices, making the implementation of an RMS hinge on the familiarity and focus of the implementation team. Praescient assigns our teams to each department with the sole purpose of making a seamless transition between solutions. Praescient's work includes configuring the RMS to match the department's specific needs and workflow, migrating historical data from previous systems, creating system interfaces between the RMS and other programs and databases actively used by the department, and organizing department-wide training. Praescient's Implementation Team has the full support of Mark43 subject matter experts to aid in any challenges that may arise, and to work with the department on optimizing their configuration to make sure all aspects of their workflows are possible within the system.

THE FUTURE

Our work does not end with the fluid switch from a department's current system to their updated RMS, as Mark43 is committed to ensuring the success of our law enforcement partners today and tomorrow. Mark43 is a SaaS platform and is always evolving with releases every 2 weeks. Our Team will continue to provide new functionality and features as they are developed and support the department in any challenges they may face going forward. Similar to the ever evolving nature of crime, Praescient and Mark43 RMS will continue to adapt to meet the needs of departments and their law enforcement efforts.

"The transfer of knowledge from Mark43 has been exceptional. With our combined efforts, we will strive to provide the client a positive experience to reach their end goal of having a state-of-the-art Law Enforcement Records Management System."

- Cindy M. Diebold, Technical Services, Praescient Analytics

We are a proud partner of Mark43 who is dedicated to advancing the capabilities of our nation's police through empowering our officers and investigators with powerful public safety platforms that ultimately lead to a better ability to serve and protect our nation's citizens.
